Michael Major Sculpture, Restoration and Conservation has been established for 16 years in North Yorkshire. Michael Major's work has been closely linked with the Castle Howard Estate where he conserved and restored the outdoor 18th century lead statue collection over a 10 year period with support from English Heritage. Michael established the accepted methodology of conserving lead statues during this period.

He specialises in metal sculpture restoration, repair of stone statuary, moulding and casting and can provide quality one-off reproductions in most materials; this includes the reduction or enlargement from original sculpture. Michael is happy to quote for any project, from small repairs to entire re-builds.
